

Effect of Binyam Mohamed Trial on Information Sharing with Britain

Office of the Spokesman
Washington, DC

Question Taken at the August 19, 2009 Daily Press Briefing
August 20, 2009

---

Question: Does the release of the 7 paragraphs of information from the trial of Binyam Mohamed hinder our intelligence sharing with Britain?

Answer: The United States and the UK government continue to share a commitment to protect sensitive national security information and preserve the long-standing intelligence sharing relationship that enables both countries to protect their citizens. Beyond that, the State Department does not comment on intelligence matters.

PRN: 2009/848